National Labor Relations Act (NLRA)

Aluminum fabricators fabricators are entitled to the National Labor Relations Act (NLRA). Under the act, fabricators are entitled to the following:

- Aluminum fabricators are entitled to the following:
  - Organize themselves into labor unions
  - Negotiate with the company
  - Cast secret ballots in elections

- Fabricators are entitled to the following:
  - Organize into labor unions
  - Cast secret ballots in elections

- Fabrikators are entitled to the following:
  - Organize into labor unions
  - Cast secret ballots in elections
If you believe that you have been unlawfully discriminated against at work, you can file a complaint with the National Labor Relations Board (NLRB). The NLRB is an independent federal agency that enforces the National Labor Relations Act (NLRA), which protects the rights of employees to organize and bargain collectively for fair wages, hours, and working conditions.

If you have any questions about your rights under the NLRA, you can contact the NLRB at 1-877-466-9757, or visit their website at www.labor.ny.gov/secure/con. You can also contact the NYS Department of Labor or Division of Human Rights at 1-877-298-9059.

If you have been subjected to unlawful discrimination, you can file a complaint with the NLRB. If you have any questions about your rights under the NLRA, you can contact the NLRB at 1-877-466-9757, or visit their website at www.labor.ny.gov/secure/con. You can also contact the NYS Department of Labor or Division of Human Rights at 1-877-298-9059.

For more information, you can visit www.wnycosh.org.